

THE WORLD BEHIND RECYCLING: EDUCATIONAL BOOK FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

One of our AIP Members, Anhely Milan MAIP has published a new book called 'The World Behind Recycling' which is an educational book for young children that talks about how recyclability helps to protect our planet.

The book answers all of the hard questions from a young child's perspective: Have they ever looked at a product and wondered whether it is recyclable? Do they know what happens after they throw their waste away and how this waste is sorted and repurposed? Mr. Bin will travel with the child through the recycling world to discover all the secrets behind recyclability. The child will learn how to recycle at home, the different materials that can be recycled, and the wonderful recycling processes. After embarking on this journey, they will no longer see waste in the same way. They will make changes to their day-to-day activities that can change the world, help create a better and cleaner planet, and most importantly, protect our future. Recycling is just one simple thing we all can do. A wonderful tool for schools and your own children and grandchildren (42 pages).
